Together, we continue to give children a voice.

Together, we continue to give children a voice.

FY2020-2021 marked 40 years of providing advocacy to children in foster care in San Diego County. As one of the earliest CASA programs in the nation, our San Diego County program remains committed to providing exceptional advocacy to children.

A CASA’S CONSISTENCY MEANS THEY WILL BE THERE WHEN IT MATTERS MOST.

The day-to-day activities of a CASA may involve sending a birthday card, taking a walk at Balboa Park, and making phone calls on the child’s behalf. It is through this work that a CASA gains a child’s trust and builds a greater understanding of a child’s needs, equipping them to advocate for the child’s best interest. That birthday may be a child’s first away from the home they’ve always known. Those walks are where a teenager feels stable, learns to trust, and may share how they’re feeling about their current placement. Those phone calls are where a CASA connects with social workers, caregivers, attorneys, or teachers to find just the right resource to improve a child’s education. These are just a few examples of the ordinary and extraordinary ways that a CASA advocates for children and shows children that they matter.

In San Diego County, we offer a unique staff advocacy program that complements our CASA program. Voices for Children conducts a thorough needs assessment of each child who enters foster care. For less urgent cases or when a CASA is not available, our staff steps in to advocate for children.

Also unique to our work in San Diego County is our Juvenile Justice CASA program. In 2017, Voices for Children expanded to serve youth involved with the juvenile justice system. This program provides a critical resource to judges and probation officers who regularly refer youth to receive the invaluable support of a CASA.

“Malia” has been through more in her life than most of us can comprehend. The girl first entered foster care at age 2 and was soon adopted. However, through no fault of her own, the adoption failed. She returned to the dependency system a year and a half later before being adopted once again.

Unfortunately, Malia’s second adoptive mother began suffering from mental illness. Her erratic behavior resulted in multiple visits from law enforcement and social workers. Their reports noted that her mother would make comments about not wanting Malia and threaten to abandon her. When officials determined it was no longer safe for 7-year-old Malia to stay in the home, she entered foster care for the third time. At that point, Malia had been let down by every adult in her life — until she met CASA Diane. Living a life filled with uncertainty, Malia suffered from extreme anxiety and behavioral issues, which resulted in several placement changes. In a span of three years, Malia lived in 11 different placements. No matter where she went, Diane visited consistently and on multiple occasions, advocated to ensure Malia had the resources she needed. When a new placement was across the county from her therapist, Diane advocated to find a new provider to make sure Malia wouldn’t miss a session. When Malia changed schools, Diane attended IEP meetings to ensure Malia received the best support for her education.

About three years after Diane was assigned to Malia’s case, the COVID-19 pandemic began. Malia’s cherished visits with her CASA became virtual. However, Diane found creative ways to stay connected and continued to support every aspect of Malia’s well-being.

In October 2020, a family showed interest in adopting Malia. Diane believed this family could be a good fit and developed a relationship with the prospective adoptive parents. The family reached out to Diane multiple times to learn more about Malia and would FaceTime Diane during their visits. After getting Malia’s blessing, they decided to move forward with adoption!

Today, Malia is 11 years old, and her adoption is expected to be finalized soon. Her new mom says she’s forever grateful for Diane’s guidance and the resources offered by Voices for Children. She even made matching friendship bracelets for herself, Malia, and CASA Diane, because Diane played such a big a role in bringing this family together.

HOPE FOR YOUTH FACING HOMELESSNESS

Lack of affordable housing is an issue millions of Americans face. For youth preparing to leave the foster care system, the problem is even more dire. According to Covenant House, more than 25 percent of youth in foster care will become homeless within two to four years of exiting the system.

Thankfully, there are agencies and organizations committed to serving Transitional Age Youth (TAY). However, funding and resources often come with restrictions or barriers that make them hard to access when facing an urgent housing crisis.

After learning about housing barriers faced by her 19-year-old case youth and his peers, one CASA volunteer was inspired to take action. In 2021, she spearheaded the creation of the TAY Emergency Housing and Homeless Prevention Fund at Voices for Children. This vital resource offers immediate funds for youth ages 18–21 to pay for rent, food, clothing, hygiene products, transportation, and services needed to keep a roof over their heads. For example, when 19-year-old “Lila” was unexpectedly evicted, her CASA helped her to secure temporary housing and to access the fund, which allowed her to rent a storage unit to keep her belongings safe until she could find a new apartment. Something as simple as a storage unit or a week’s worth of groceries could keep a young person from experiencing homelessness.

Thank you, CASAs, for giving TAY a helping hand as they step into adulthood.

STEPPING UP

217 individuals became CASAs this year, completing Advocate University, Voices for Children’s comprehensive training program for new CASA volunteers.
