

Meeting Challenges, Leading Change

When a child experiences neglect or abuse and then is placed in foster care, who speaks up for that child? CASAs do.

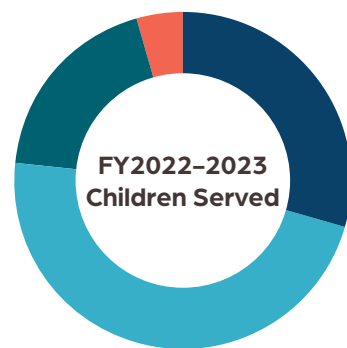

A Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) comes into a child's life and provides individualized advocacy, a trusting relationship, and the personalized, caring attention they deserve. Our CASA volunteers make a difference, creating the opportunity for each child to thrive in a safe, nurturing environment.

CASA volunteers bring a unique dedication to children, families, and the San Diego community that has a lasting impact on current and future generations. That's why Voices for Children (VFC) is honored to have connected more than 1,800 youth in San Diego County foster care with CASAs and staff advocates this year alone. The one-on-one attention and advocacy only a CASA can provide offers children and families a consistent presence through challenging times. They facilitate nurturing relationships and help create a support network to keep families connected and together when safe and possible.

We ended the fiscal year on a strong note, celebrating the progress made to enhance our services as part of our Strategic Plan. We have augmented the diversity of our CASAs and staff members to reflect the identities of the children we serve and better meet their needs. We leveraged our partnerships to address specific challenges like the rise in youth mental health cases and a shortage of foster homes. Our evolving CASA model surpassed our goal to serve more justice-involved youth and is regarded as a promising example of how to apply a CASA program to the juvenile justice system throughout the country.

In the following pages, you will see the ripple effects of our work serving the most vulnerable children in San Diego County. You will read inspiring stories of advocacy that show how our dedicated CASAs and community partners continue to step up and go above and beyond to ensure children in foster care have their needs met and voices heard.

THIS YEAR IN SAN DIEGO COUNTY July 1, 2022 – June 30, 2023

- 796 children entered foster care this year and received a thorough needs assessment by VFC staff
- 1,266 children received a CASA volunteer
- 508 children in foster care received a VFC staff advocate
- 112 children received a CASA through Voices for Children's Juvenile Justice Program

BY YOUR SIDE

"We rise by lifting others." – ROBERT INGERSOLL

In 2021, the child abuse hotline received a referral for "Keri*," a 10-year-old girl who had been abandoned at a local hospital. She had multiple developmental disabilities and mental health needs. Her mother refused to pick her up, sought to terminate her parental rights, and denied knowing the father's whereabouts. Having no other options, caseworkers moved Keri to Polinsky Children's Center (PCC), an emergency short-term residential facility.

Shortly thereafter, CASA Renee, who had just been sworn in as a CASA, accepted Keri's case without hesitation. CASA Renee quickly learned that, due to Keri's high level of need, there were tremendous barriers to identifying placement options. Keri's support team went through exhaustive efforts to locate a suitable long-term home for her. At the same time, CASA Renee focused on acquainting herself with the PCC staff who knew Keri best. Thanks to CASA Renee's patience and persistence, Keri eventually warmed up to her. CASA Renee took the time to get to know Keri, learning that she had specific Barbies and snacks she liked and that she loved to sing and swim. She also got to see the charming and loving side of Keri, which few reports mentioned.

After months of countless phone calls and interviews, Keri's team finally found a suitable placement. This placement would provide Keri with the longer-term level of care she required. However, Keri feared being in a car, so on the day she moved to her new out-of-county placement, CASA Renee was there to comfort and help her stay calm while in the car. Together, her social worker and CASA Renee had a playlist of songs they knew Keri enjoyed, a ton of snacks, and, of course, her favorite Barbies all ready to go. The car ride went safely and smoothly because of CASA Renee's profound awareness and familiarity with Keri.

Today, Keri is thriving in many ways beyond what most thought possible. The past few months have been incredibly optimistic, with CASA Renee sticking by Keri's side throughout the journey. CASA Renee has advocated for Keri during transition plans for special school education programs and served as Keri's educational rights holder for the past two years.

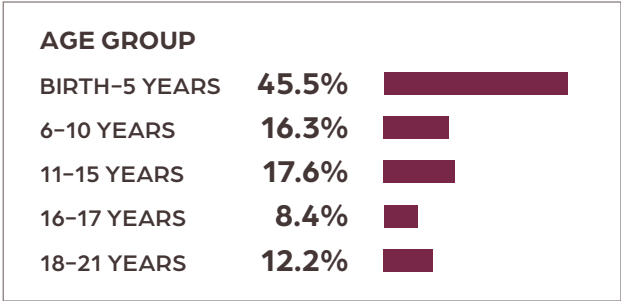

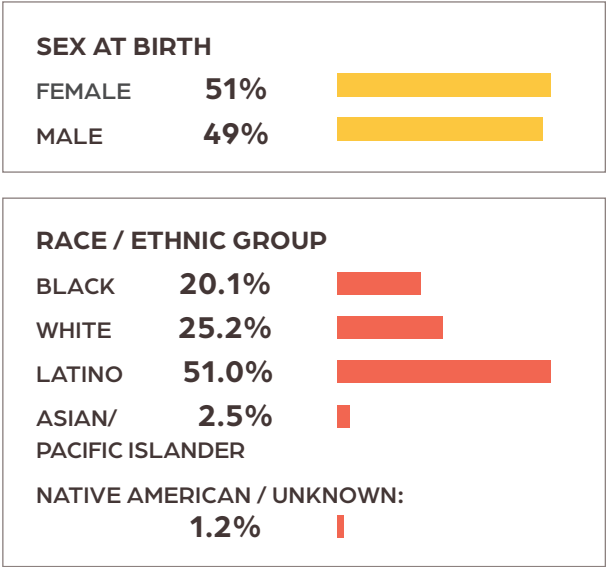

CASA Renee's consistency has proven tremendous, and while other professionals have transitioned off the case, CASA Renee remains by Keri's side.

Keri will be transitioning to a new supportive housing institute to cater to her unique developmental needs in the coming weeks. CASA Renee has been involved in every step, ensuring that Keri will continue to receive the care she deserves and progress in her abilities.

design. CASA Bruce continually encouraged his artistic interests, always asking to see his latest drawings during visits. At the suggestion of CASA Bruce, Paul’s therapist also engaged him through his art. CASA Bruce even advocated for Paul to participate in a graphic design course through the rehabilitative program.

Throughout Paul’s time in juvenile detention, CASA Bruce visited him weekly and built a trusting bond. He is the most consistent support Paul has had while being detained. Throughout their time together, CASA Bruce stressed the importance of earning a high school diploma, and, over time, Paul began to exhibit a genuine motivation to earn his high school degree. Encouraging this, CASA Bruce was in constant communication with Paul’s teachers and counselors about graduation planning.

Last year, CASA Bruce and Paul’s therapist attended his hearing, passionately advocating for his early release from the program. The judge, deeply moved by CASA Bruce’s report, granted Paul’s release with the requisite that he complete his school work to successfully finish high school.

CASA Bruce was instrumental in ensuring Paul was able to complete his remaining credits. Within a few weeks, Paul graduated from high school. CASA Bruce, Paul’s parents, and even the judge overseeing his case attended the ceremony. In his speech, Paul expressed gratitude to CASA Bruce and the judge, leaving an emotional impact on everyone present, including the judge, whose eyes welled up with tears.

Paul’s long-term goal is to build on his experiences and work with at-risk youth.

STEPPING UP

 Through the nation’s largest Juvenile Justice Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) program, Voices for Children has served 240 at-risk and justice-involved youth since the program’s inception in 2018. Our innovative approach has seen positive outcomes, including improved access to prosocial activities and trauma-informed services and interventions. Even more inspiring is our youth participants’ high rate of successful probation compliance and completion. This story showcases the powerful ripple effect of one CASA volunteer on the life of a justice-involved youth in our community.

After a difficult upbringing battling mental health issues and volatile relationships at home, “Paul*” made some poor decisions that resulted in interactions with the juvenile justice system and his detention in a custodial rehabilitative program for youth on probation.

CASA Bruce was assigned to Paul’s case for more than two years, showing unwavering dedication and refusing to give up on Paul, even when others seemed to have lost hope. Paul is a bright young man with a talent for drawing and

CASA SONYA

Became a CASA in 2010

CASA Sonya has been an unwavering advocate for 13 years. For the last seven years, she has positively impacted “Michael,” a young man who experienced a rebellious phase as a teen. Through her efforts, 19-year-old Michael is excelling academically in college. He is also the proud father of a healthy baby boy. CASA Sonya continues to stand by him as he transitions into this next chapter of his life.
